ALMOST A TRAGEDY AT TARRYTOWN. JOHN DANIEL M'CARTHY SHOT BY ETTA LENA FUL-LER (BOTH COLORED).

JOHN DANIEL M'CARTHY SHOT BY ETTA LENA FULLER (BOTH COLORED).

An sir of romantic mystery hung all yesterday about the closely drawn green curtains of a small barber-shop in Main-st., Tarrytown. The romantic element was there because it was known that the young barber, John Daniel McCarthy, had been shot down in his shop by Etta Lena Fuller in broad daylight on the previous afternoon.
And there was mystery in the story, too, for John Daniel had been known to give seventeen differing accounts of the affair, so that it was common talk about town that a masked woman had entered John Daniel's shop while he was napping on his sofa; that the woman was his stepmother; that she went into the shop without a mask on while he was shaving a customer; that she was his mother-in-law and dropped in to have a pleasant afternoon chat with him: that she asked when he was going to marry her, and said she would shoot him if she caught him walking with any other girl; and that finally she took time by the forelock and did shoot him then and there with a horse-pistol, which was a nickel-plated, large-sized navy revolver of twenty-two calibre.
After carefully adding all the stories of John Daniel's friends together, dividing the sum by two different accounts given by himself, and applining the theory of probabilities to the result, a TRIBUNE reporter who visited Tarrytown yesterday arrived at the icllowing story of the case:

John Daniel McCarthy, a somewhat blonde negrobarber, twenty-one years old, was introduced one evening to Etta Lena Fuller, a dashing brunette of the same race. He accompanied her to her mother's home on a storny night. The acquaintance ripened into intimate friendship and then into romantic attachment, at least on Etta Lena's part.
But the end of it all was doomed to be more stormy than the night on which they met. For Etta Lena heard vazue but horrid rumors that John Daniel went walking with other girls, and that he had a letter from his wife in the far South. So she went to his little shop on Sunday

MISS LEONARD IN THE TOMBS. NOT PLEASED WITH THE CHANGE-SHOWING THE

EFFECTS OF IMPRISONMENT. Leonard, who shot Mrs. Clarence Smith on

Helen Leouard, who shot Mrs. Clarence Smith on June 15, was removed yesterday from the Jefferson Market Jail, where she has been incarcerated since the shooting, to the Tombs. She is beginning to look ill and wretched from suspense and anxiety. Her face has grown thin. "I am so glad to see you." she said to a Tribune reporter two or three hours after her arrival in her new quarters; "it is so terribly louely here."

"Then you do not like the change?"

"I hate it. Everyone was kind at Jefferson Market. Mrs. Eurrowes, the matron, has been like a mother to me. She is like a mother, and a Christian one, too, to all the unfortunates there, and I will never forget her. Then I have another friend to tell you about. Who do you think it is I It is my old governess who used to teach me and my sister in New-Orleaus. She is living at Rochester, but just as soon as she saw about me in the papers she came to New-York to take care of me, and she has been here ever since."

"Have you heard from Callagban?"

"No. He was in Poughkeepsic a few days, but I believe he is in New-York now. But he can do me no good now; his evidence would not help me."

Miss Leonard also repeated her statement that when she was arrested and taken to Inspector Byrnes's office the Inspector told her that Callaghan bad just been there, and that nothing would be done if she returned Mrs. Smith's letters. "I was arrested," she said, "at 9 o'clock, and kept in his office till half-past 2 before I was taken to Jefferson Market Jani. Doesn't that look as if they were trying to arrange matters?"

Clarence Smith, she said, had been hanging around the District-Attorney's office yesterday morning, to do her more harm, she supposed. She expects to have her case decided in a day or two. Her counsel wished her to postpone the trial till the first Monday after the Fourth of July. "But I screamed." She said, "when he suggested it this morning. I told him I would die if I were locked upany longer, so he is going to apply for a trial in a day or two."

When asked if she told film I would die it I were locked up any longer, so he is going to apply for a trial in a day or two."

When asked if she thought Mrs. Smith would be well enough to give evidence, Miss Leonard expressed herself very energetically: "Mrs. Smith, indeed! I will just tell you she wasn't wounded at all. When she was lying on the sofa at Dr. Blomdille and I was waking up and down the room. I all. When she was lying on the soils at Dr. Blomdell's and I was walking up and down the room, I just went over to her and saw where the bullet struck. It struck her corset and glanced off to one side, I don't be lever the bullet gave her a scratch, but of course Dr. Blondell and Dr. Phelps are against me. There is Clarence Smith poisoning their ears, and I have no friends to speak for me." Mr. Kintzing, Miss Leonard's counsel, said that no further application for ball would be made, "If it is $5,000, or $500, it does not matter," he remarked; "none of us have any ball to offer, and all we can do is to hasten the trial as much as possible."

DROWNINGS BY ACCIDENT AND DESIGN. DROWNINGS BY ACCIDENT AND DESIGN.

Reuben H. Norcott, an artist, of No. 127 Charlton-st., who has been boarding at McQuinlan's Hotel, at Clifton, S. I., committed suicide yesterday morning from Lawler's ship-yard. For some time he had suffered from acute neuralgia and malaria until his mind was affected. He started with his wife for a morning walk, and on reaching the pier-herequested her to take a letter to the post office. She had gone only half the length of the yard when on turning back to look at her husband she saw merely his coat and hat. He had hastily thrown off the articles and plunged overboard. The body was recovered.

A short, stout man about forty years old, who wore a dark cap and a brown checked suit, took off his outside clothing at the foot of Jackson-st., at noon yesterday, and junned into the East River. Persons who saw him make the plunge thought at first that he intended to take a bath, and efforts were not made to rescue him. His body soon disappeared. The ciothing left on the pier was given to the police, who did not find anything in the pockets to establish the suicide's indetity. It is believed that the man was an emigrant. Captain Morton, of the fishing schooner Melody, informed the police that at 1 a. m., while the schooner was off Bay Ridge, John Danser, a deck hand, fell overboard and was drowned. Danser was twenty-seven years old whose parents live. don, Conn.

JAMES A. BURNETT ACQUITTED.

JAMES A. BURNETT ACQUITTED.

The trial of James A. Burnett, the cashier of E. & H. T. Anthony & Co., which has occupied several days in the Court of General Sessions, was finished yesterday by the acquittal of the defendant. Burneit and Charles Roth acted together as cashiers and bookkeepers of the firm by which they were employed. After they had both left their employers, irregularities to the amount of $13,000 were discovered in the books kept by the young men. Burnett had become cashier of a bank in Colorado, and he was arrested in that State on a requisition from Governor Cleveland. Roth was arrested to plead to the charges against them, Roth acknowledged that he was guilty and that the frauds had been committed only by him. When he was called as a witness for the defence in Burnett's trial, he explained jully the method in which he had defranded the firm without the knowledge of his companion. Either of the young men might balance the cash account at night, and the results of the addition of the columns were marked in pencil, and so left till the next day, when the figures were copied in ink. When the cash was balanced by Burnett, Roth would take advantage of his companion's temporary absence to change the figures made in pencil by amounts varying from $50 to $100 a day, and would appropriate the difference. When he balanced the cash himself the process was still more simple. His testimony was straightforward, and was not weakened by cross-examination. Roth has not yet been sentenced.

RARE COINS AND MEDALS AT AUCTION. The sale of William J. Jenks's collection of American and foreign coins and medals began yesterday afternoon at Bangs & Co.'s auction rooms, No. 739 Breadway. For the suiver dollar of 1794, in fair condition. $41 was paid. A unique specimen of the dollar of 1836 brought $41. Proof specimens of 1838 and 1839 sold for $49 and $39 50 respectively. Better prices were paid for the half dollars, the highest being $55 for a good specimen of 1796. The quarter dollar of 1823, though somewhat defaced, was sold for $30. The 1799 cent, in fair condition, brought $17. The American gold coinage, of which the collection contained a complete list, brought with the exception of a few pieces, little more than its face value. The most notable coin was the half eagle of 1815, there being only three genuine specimens extant. It was sold for $300. The quarter eagle of 1797, brought $49 50 and a $50 gold piece, or slug, which is now very rare, sold for $59 75.

SHARP WORDS BETWEEN OFFICIALS. MR, REILLY SAYS THAT HE DOESN'T CARE A FIG FOR MR. ASTEN'S OPINION.

At the meeting of the Board of Estimate and Apportionment yesterday, President Reilly of the Board of Aldermen moved that $1.346 99 be transferred from an unexpended balance to defray the expenses of the special committee of Aldermen now investigating the frauds in the Finance Department.

investigating the frauds in the Finance Department.

President Asten opposed the motion on the ground that the Board had no legal right to transfer any sum for a purpose of this kind. The Mayor had the power, he said, to anthorize the Commissioners of Accounts to examine the books and accounts of any department of the City Government. They were now engaged in making a special investigation of the Finance Department.

Mr. Reilly declared that the Board of Estimate and Apportionment had the power to make the transfer and that the Aldermen had authority to order an investigation. The Commissioners of Accounts had made one examination of the frauds in the Finance Department and the public were not satisfied with it. Frauds had been committed in the Finance Department and it was only right that the bottom facts should be reached. Mr. Asten asserted that the Commissioners of Accounts were the proper officials to make the investigation.

only right that the bottom facts should be reached.
Mr. Asten asserted that the Commissioners of Accounts were the proper officials to make the investation. He thought that the Corporation Counsel should be asked if money could be appropriated for a special investigation.

"I maintain," said Mr. Reilly, "that we have such authority. The special committee of the Board of Aidermen have brought out evidence showing gross carelessness in the management of the Finance Department. The loose management of that Department allowed frauds to be carried on there for several years before they were detected. It looks as though President Asten were not willing to have the frauds fully investigated. I am not in favor of covering up any corruption."

Lindsay J. Howe, the expert accountant appointed by the Board of Aldermen to investigate the accounts in the Finance Department, applied yesterday to the Commissioners of Accounts for leave to examine the books, papers, compons, etc., in their possession. They are making a second examination of the Finance Department, They declined to recognize Mr. Howe's authority until he had received a written authorization from General Cochrane, chairman of the Aldermen's Committee. This was procured and the Commissioners of Accounts promised to grant Mr. Howe the necessary facilities. The District-Attorney's office was then visited. Assistant District-Attorney Vincent declined to allow certain papers to go out of the possession of the custodian. These hear on the culpability of William B. Carroll, the dead defaulting clerk, and are necessary to a thorough examination of the case.

How an expert swimmer came to grief.

Daniel Davids is a summer boarder at Tempkinsville, S. I. A few days ago he was boasting to a party of boatmen of his experiness as a swimmer. Mr. Davids is a corpulent man. Yesterday he started to go on board a steam yacht for a pleasure cruise, and in order to enliven the trip he carried under one arm a box of Mumm's Extra Dry. It was necessary for him to walk along a string-piece on the pier to reach a small boat that was waiting to convey him to the yacht. A post interfered with the passage of Mr. Davids's body and the wine. Twice he tried to pass it and hearly lost his balance. A third attempt was made, and then both Mr. Davids and the box of wine went overboord. The boatmen expected to see him swim gracefully to a float, and so confident were they that it would hurt his pride to aid him that no effort was made at resone. Keen eyes, however, were kept on the floating box of wine. Mr. Davids plunged about awkwardly, and after becoming completely exhausted, and having swallowed a quantity of water, he was pulled out by Special Officer Peter Devlin just as he was sinking for the third time. Mr. Davids had to be almost carried back to the hotel, a task which required the muscle of four strong men. The boatmen meanwhile had fished the box of wine up to the float and with an old oyster-kinfe broke the necks from the bottles, which were emptied with celerity.

THE COLLISION WITH THE RADHA.

The Collision with the Kadha.

The Pennsylvania Railroad has thus far made no investigation into the causes which led to the collision between the ferryboat Jersey City and Pierre Lorillard's steam yacht Radha. Captain Bloomsbury, the acting superintendent of the ferries, said yesterday afternoon that no investigation would be made by the company nor any action taken until the Inspectors of Steamboats had completed their investigation.

Aaron Wilson, the pilot of the ferryboat Jersey City, has made a report to the Steamboat Inspectors. It does not differ materially from the published statements of the pilot. After stating the relative positions of the vessels he says:

The pilot says that the collision occurred about two-thirds of the way from New-York to the New-Jersey shore, and that the damage to the ferry boat was about $250. The captain of Mr. Lorillard's yacht called at the Inspector's office and promised to submit 2 written report.

SWINDLING IN THE NAME OF CHARITY. SWINDLING IN THE NAME OF CHARITY.

"This is not the first time we have been defrauded by persons representing themselves as agents of St. John's Guild." said the Rev. John W. Kramer, the master of the Guild, to a Tribung reporter.

"Marks, who was arrested on Sinday on complaint of Otis W. Raudall, of No. 256 Fifth-ave., for swindling the latter's mother out of $50, did his work very skilfully. He placed on his subscription list the forged names of several leading firms to give it an air of genuinees. He made his collections through American District Telegraph messengers and succeeded in duping a number of people. A few years ago we learned from the complaints of contributors that some one. a number of people. A few years ago we learned from the complaints of contributors that some one, representing himself as a collector for the Guild, had been defrauding the public in a way similar to the method pursued by Marks. We at length detected the swindler and stopped his little game."

Marks was arraigned before Justice Duffy at the Jefferson Market Police Court in the affermoon. Mrs. Hannah Schlesinger, of No. 143 West Fourteenth-st., testified that Marks had got $10 from her, she believing that he was a collector of the Guild. HELD FOR EXTRADITION.

Dirk C. Horseling, who was arrested in Grand Rapids, Mich., was taken yesterday before Commissioner Osborn to answer to a request for his extradition by the Consul for the Netterlands. Horseling had been a collector of public money at Putten, in the province of Gelderland, in the Netherlands. It is charged that he appropriated $2,400 of the money collected by him and fied to this country on January 30. When he came to this country Horseling applied to a countryman for assistance, and as he showed much intelligence, he was recommended to a farmer living near Grand Rapids. His patron caused inquiries to be made in the Netherlands as to the past history of Horseling, and in that way the Government heard of his place of residence. Detective Dorsey, of this city, was sent after the accused man, and he was arrested. When taken before the Commissioner Horseling admitted that he had appropriated some of the money collected. He thought it had bean restored by some of his friends. He was held for extradition under the clause that makes the embezzlement of public moneys an extraditable offence. HELD FOR EXTRADITION.

MISSING MINNIE RIKER.

Minnie E. Riker, the school girl who left her home, No. 233 East One-hundred-and-twenty-second-st., on June 18, and who has not since been heard from has been traced it is said, by her relatives, to Montelair, N. J. In that town she has several friends, among whom is an aunt, Mrs. William Bodle, with whom she is supposed to be living. Mrs. Riker, Minnie's widowed mother, went to Montelair yesterday in search of her daughter. The missing girl was sixteen years of are and quite. Mrs. Riker, Minuie's widowed mother, went to Montolair yesterday in search of her daughter. The missing girl was sixteen vears of age and quite pretty. Until March 27 she attended Grammar School No. 68, in East One-hundred-and-twenty-eighth-st., but on that day her mother entered her in School No. 39, in East One-hundred-and-twenty-fifth-st. About two weeks ago, while Mrs. Riker was calling on some of her friends, she was congratulated upon having such a good-looking daughter. Mrs. Riker made a few inquiries about the time and place that Minnie had been seen, and was astonished to learn that her daughter had not attended school since the day she entered her as a scholar. When Minnie returned that evening her mother taxed her with her truancy, but she denied that she had been away from her class-room. Mrs. Riker said that she would take her to the principal of the school the following day and ascertain the truth. Minnie was sent on an errand shortly afterward, but did not return. The police were informed and a search was made. Last Sunday two men called on Mrs. Riker and told her that they had been informed by a friend of theirs who lived in Montolair that he had carried a girl answering to Minnie's clearing to the school of her own age, and she passed all her evenings in her own lone. Her sudden departure is attributed by those who companions had always been girls of her own age, and she passed all her evenings in her own home. Her sudden departure is attributed by those who knew her to fright caused by her mother threatening to take her to the principal of the school from which she had been playing truant. Her truancy is explained by her dislike to the school. The hours she passed out of her class-room were spent among girl friends. STRANGE CONDUCT OF A POLICEMAN.

STRANGE CONDUCT OF A POLICEMAN.

Policeman Thomas Byrnes, of the Eighth Precinct, took three prisoners to the Jefferson Market Police Court yesterday. They were Angelo Winasso, of No. 79 Sullivan-st., charged with violation of the Excise law; John Carrara, of No. 33 Sullivan-st., charged with interfering with the officer in the discharge of his duty; and John Gibson, charged with intexication. The conduct of the officer was so remarkable that the clerk order him to sit down. Winasso said that Byrnes entered his place on Sunday and asked for a glass of soda water with a "stick" in it. He was told that no liquor was sold on Sunday. Byrnes became violent and noisy, and said that he would arrest Winasso for violation of the Excise law. Mrs. Winasso interfered and Byrnes drew a revolver and threatened to shoot her. Winasso was then dragged to the sidewalk by the officer, who kept flourishing his revolver and instituters are to interfere with him. A Lyrge Byrnes drew a revolver and threatened to shoot her. Winasso was then dragged to the sidewalk by the officer, who kept flourishing his revolver and inviting any one to interfere with him. A large crowd gathered and John Carrara asked what Winasso had done. With an oath Byrnes pointed the revolver at Carrara's head and fired. The bullet cut a lock of hair from his temple and buried itself in the walls of a house opposite. At the report of the revolver the crowd scattered and Winasso was taken to the police station, followed by Carrara, who intended making a complaint against Byrnes. Both men, however, were locked up. A number of witnesses were ready to swear to the truth of Winasso's statement and the two men were immediately discharged. Gibson was charged with throwing a brick at Byrnes, and as he was under the influence of liquor he was committed.

About an hour later Byrnes reappeared in court and said to Justice Duffy that he had been sent by the sergeant to find out why Winasso and Carrara had been discharged. The justice told the contract had been sent by the sergeant to find out why Winasso and Carrara had been sent to the deleter mind his host-

MR. PEARSON AND THE PRIVATE POSTS.

Postmaster Pearson's attention was called yesterday to a report that he had been connected with some of the companies for the private delivery of letters, and for that reason had neglected to report to the Department the existence of companies that were violating the law. Mr. Pearson said to a Tribunz reporter: "I have never held any stock, nor bought any, nor had any purchased for me, in any messenger or delivery company. The rumor may have arisen from one fact. About a year ago two friends in whom I had confidence came to my office and asked me to sign an application to the Secretary of the State for the incorporation of the Manhattan District Telegraph Company. I did so, and my name may therefore have appeared as a corporator, and, I am informed, also appeared as truster for the first way. and my name may therefore move appeared as a con-porator, and, I am informed, also appeared as trus-tee for the first year. But I never received notice of my election as trustee, never knew of or attended any meeting, and don't know now where the office of the company is. I was never in any way inter-ested in any other company for the delivery of let-ters."

The district telegraph companies have always held that they act only as special messengers and are not liable to the penalties against private le terdispatch offices. The section under which companies have been sued for the recovery of penalties expressly excepts from its provisions the carrying of letters by special messengers.

THE THOUGHT-READING WAGER,

From The St. James's Gazette, June 13,

St. James's Hall was filled last night by an audience invited to witness a performance of Mr. Irving Bishop's nowers, and to see the outcome of the challenge made by Mr. Labouchère. M. F., to test the "thought reader's" ability to tell the number of a concealed bank-note under ceriain conditions. The whole of the proceeds of the entertainment are to be given to the Victoria Hospitial for Children, Chelisa. The terms of the offer made by Mr. Labouchère were that he would pay ever $1,000 if Mr. Bishop succeeded, on condition that Mr. Bishop should forfest £100 in case of failure. Mr. Bishop was to have two guesses at the number of a note, which should be inclosed in an envelope, the number being known to the person alone in whose hands it was placed, and Mr. Firth, M. P., was named by Mr. Labouchère as the holder. Last night Mr. Bishop began by referring to this challenge, and ness gagested that the antistance should nominate a committee for this occasion. Names were called out, and among those who axcended the platform were Mr. Waddy, Q. C., M. P.; Mr. Passmote-Edwards, M. P.; General Kaines, Colonel Statham (2d Manchester Rifle Volunteers), the Rev. H. R. Haweis, the Rev. Dr. Tremlet, Mr. George Lane-Fox and Mr. Walter Webling. It being now about half-past 8 Mr. Bishop said he had reserved chairs on the platform for Mr. Labouchère and Mr. Firth; but as neither of those gentlemen appeared to answer his invitation to them to take those places, he snould proceed to show some experiments illustrating the case with which the senses migal be deceived. Some performances were gone through, and then Mr. Bishop returned to the subject of the challenge, and read one of Mr. Labouchère should be a handed "to some reliable person who should be told the number." He had sent an acceptance of the challenge, and read one of Mr. Labouchère should be handed "to some reliable person when the holder of the challenge, with regard to Mr. Eshouchere soul had been ta-formed by several members of t mented with Mr. Ray Lankester, he had found him an unsuitable person; and he does not profess 5 be able to succeed equally well with all persons, temperament having having much to do with success or failure. Mr. Waddy, who had been appointed charman, had difficulty in preserving order, and as Mr. Lankester did not feel himself at liberty to accept conditions save those mentioned, the difficulty had to be solved by Colonel Trenen dor wheelings character Mr. Edward Stanhope vouched supplying another bank note. Itse qualence consenting, this note was placed by Mr. Waddy in the hands of Colonel Statham, one of the committee, and Mr. Bishop, being blindful and not apparently touching Colonel Statham, who stood close beside him, but moving his hand about the arm of the subject, wore down the numbers 66594. He was by the terms of Mr. Labonchere's enalengs to have two clear guesses, he said, and he asked it the number he had written was right or wrong. Colonel Statham reHOME NEWS.

BABIES IN SCANDINAVIA

BABIES IN SCANDINAVIA.

From The Little Folks' Magazine,
The peasants like grand names for their little once, such as Adolph, Adricin, Golfried, Gustavus, for boys; and Josephina, Thora, Ingebors, for girls; and if they have no name prepared they seek one in the aimanae for the particular day of baby's birth. It is baptized the next Sunday and taken to church by the godinother, who provides the coristening garments, which are often trimmed with colored bows, while the inlant has beads round its neck and wears a cap with very little border. The clergyman holds it well over the font and pours water over the back of the head three times, then wipes with a towel. As the baby is swathed in six-inch-wide bandages so that it cannot move its legs and sometimes not even its arms, it is obliged to lie very passive during this ceremonial. The peasants nave their reasons for this swathing, the first of which is that they think it makes the limbs grow straight; the second that it turns baby into a compact bundle to carry. When swathed thus, infants have been said to resemble the tail of a lobster, or even its whole body. In the north they are often hung from a long, springy pole stuck in the wall, to be out of the way; and, being by nature quiet, they are supposed not to mind it. Their cradles, which are very prinative, are also frequently suspended by a spiral spring from the roof, which must be more comfortable than the pole. Both in Swedish and Norwegian Lapland, people take these "swaddings" to church. But instead of carrying them into church they make a hole in the snow outside in the church ard and bury them in it, leaving a small apertare for breathing parposes. The bables are kept splendidly warm, while their friends within the sacred building have their beards frozen to their fur coats by the freezing of their own breaths. As soon as a peasant boy can walk he is put into trousers, buttoned outside his jacket; and these are so baggy behind that it is often amoning to see him. This bagginess is frequently due to the
